NIPSIC AFLOAT.

The United States Still Has a Vessel at Samoa.

ARRIVAL OF A BRITISH VESSEL AT SYDNEY WITH THE NEWS.

The Disabled Vessel is Planted Off the Beach, The Friendly Natives Lending Material Assistance—The Germans Order a Cruiser, a Gunboat and a Corvette to Samoa at Once.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., April 6.—The British man-of-war Callopo, which escaped possible destruction in Asia during the ravages of the cyclone there on March 15 and 16 by being able to put to sea, has arrived here. She reports leaving Samoa on the 21st of March, and that the United States man-of-war Nipsic had been floated off the beach, the natives lending material assistance.

Before the hurricane burst every precaution had been taken by the commander of the Callopo to render the vessel secure. Five anchors had been dropped, but when the storm was at its height four of the anchor chains snapped, and the vessel began to drift. The captain then determined to leave the reefs, and, if possible, reach the open sea. This he eventually succeeded in doing, working his way out at the rate of half a knot an hour. Tremendous seas broke over the vessel, inflicting much damage, but fortunately not a life was lost. Thousands of people flock to the water side to see the Callopo, and all unite in praising the pluckiness of her captain.

Secretary Tracy Pleased.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—The news was received with a great deal of satisfaction by Secretary Tracy and the bureau officers of the navy department. "That's good news; that's good. I'm glad to hear it," said the secretary. And his face indicated as well as his words the pleasure the tidings gave him.

Armament of the Wrecked Vessel.

New York, April 6.—The report from Washington that the guns of the Trenton would probably be raised and put on other vessels was thought by the officers at the navy yard here to be highly probable. It was also the opinion that the guns of the Vandania and Nipsic would also be raised as several of them are of the modern pattern of rifles and could be utilized upon other vessels. They are not all obsolete smooth-bore guns, as has been supposed by many.

The Trenton had two 20-pounder breech-loading rifles, two 3-inch breech-loading rifles, ten 8-inch muzzle-loading rifles, one 12-pounder howitzer and four 47-millimeter revolving cannon.

The Vandania had one 60-pounder breech-loading rifle, two 20-pound breech-loading rifles, one 3-inch breech-loading rifle, six 9-inch smooth-bore guns, one 8-inch muzzle-loader, one 12-pounder howitzer and two Gatling guns.

The Nipsic had one 60-pounder breech-loading rifle, one 3-inch breech-loading rifle, one 8-inch muzzle-loading rifle, four 9-inch smooth-bore guns and one Gatling gun.

The Yantic Ready for Sea.

New York, April 6.—Commander Charles S. Rockwell, commanding the United States ship-of-war Yantic, said Thursday that his vessel would be ready for sea on Saturday, but that a change having been made in the detail of vessels to take the places of the Trenton, Vandania and Nipsic at Samoa, it was not certain that the Yantic would go to the South Atlantic. He did not know where she would go, but it had been suggested that she might go to Cape Haytian, to relieve the Galea, now there. One of the surgeons of the navy said he did not believe that the Yantic would be again ordered to Hayti, whence she recently returned with the yellow fever on board.

Samoa Conference Studying Up.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—The American commissioners to the Samoan conference have engaged passage for Europe on the Umbria, which sails from New York on the 13th. Meanwhile they are frequently at the department of state consulting with the officials and studying the protocols of the last conference.

More German Vessels for Samoa.

KIEL, April 6.—The German naval authorities have ordered the cruiser Halibut and the gunboat Wolf to be put in readiness at once to proceed to Samoa. The German corvette Sophie has left Zanzibar for Samoa.

A MURDERER ARRESTED.

He is at Last Captured After Being a Fugitive for Over Five Years.

HUNTINGTON, Ind., April 6.—City Marshal Rosebrough and Policeman Dillon returned Wednesday from Ashland, Wis., with Shamus O'Brien, who was under arrest there. O'Brien is wanted here for the killing of his friend, Newcomb, and the attempted murder of Policeman Baumgartner. This affair occurred over five years ago. O'Brien, Newcomb, George Delvin, of this city, and a youth named Steinbrenner, attempted to rob the postoffice here, but were foiled by the officer, and in the melee which ensued O'Brien accidentally shot and killed Newcomb, and then shot Baumgartner.

Delvin and Steinbrenner were captured, but Delvin broke jail, and Steinbrenner was acquitted because of his youth and through sympathy. O'Brien was never under arrest for this crime until now. He admits his name is O'Brien, but claims he can prove an alibi. His home is at Urbana, O. Delvin is now under arrest at Marion, Grant county, for burglary, and the officers refuse to give him up.

Murdered for Protecting a Lady.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., April 6.—John Justice, a desperado, married to one of the females of the Hatfield gang, while on board the steamer Spunk, on the Big Sandy river, on Wednesday attempted to kiss a lady passenger. John Hamilton, the clerk of the boat, interfered and was instantly killed. Just a few minutes after the boat covering the officers with his revolver until he had made his escape. Justice is a very desperate man and will not be captured without trouble.

BEHRING SEA QUESTION.

Harrison Has the Proper Idea—The Main Point After All is the Protection of the Seal.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—The discussion on the Behring sea question in the senate at Ottawa, on Wednesday, omitted what has recently been elevated into perhaps the most important part of the controversy. The speech of Mr. Abbott, the government leader, turned on the point whether the recent proclamation of President Harrison reasserted a claim to jurisdiction over the entire eastern half of Behring sea, and he concluded that it could not bear that interpretation.

He held that its phrase, "The dominion of the United States in the waters of Behring sea," was still left to be defined under the international law. But recent efforts have been directed in a different direction, that of framing an international agreement to protect the fur seal from extermination, while leaving in abeyance the dispute as to the ownership of Behring sea and the validity of the Russian maritime cession as against foreign nations.

There would be decided advantages in this form of compromise. In the first place, an agreement based upon the practical need of preventing the extinction of the seal through unlimited hunting would avoid some delicate questions as to justification beyond the marine league. These latter questions enter into our dispute with Canada in regard to the North Atlantic fisheries; and since this dispute was not settled by Mr. Bayard, the controversy as to what shall be interpreted as closed seas and closed gulfs is one that must be treated warily. In the next place, such an arrangement for the protection of the seal would surely be for the benefit of the United States, since some one government should incur the expenses and receive the net earnings of leasing the seal islands, and inasmuch as not only these islands but the entire coast line of Behring sea on this continent belongs to us, and since the seal fisheries were the leading element of value in our purchase from Russia, and what has been received from them annually as a result of privileges does not meet the annual interest on the purchase money, reckoned at a moderate percentage, our government should be the one selected for controlling and regulating these privileges.

Under such an arrangement it might be possible to open to the inhabitants of British Columbia their privileges of competing for the lease as well as the people of our Pacific states and territories and others. The perfect good faith of our government in the matter has already been shown in the fact that American citizens not authorized to hunt the seals have been driven off and punished for violations of the statutes quite as vigorously as the subjects of Great Britain. There has been no discrimination on grounds of nationality in this matter.

The twofold purpose of our government was to prevent the indiscriminate slaughter of the animals, and in so doing to prevent also the loss of that principal element of government property which had been taken into consideration when the price paid for Alaska was fixed. Accordingly Great Britain as well as all other commercial powers, in consideration of our leaving in abeyance the question of complete jurisdiction over the eastern half of Behring sea and Behring strait might well agree to the exclusive policing of these waters by our government for the purpose of protecting seal life. The absolute need of such protection is proved by experience all along the Pacific coast, not only as far south as Lower California, but in islands belonging to the southern part of South America, where unrestrained hunting has produced practical extinction of the seal. Thus it is for the common interest of mankind to preserve the rookeries of Alaska, and equity shows that our government should take whatever pecuniary profit may result from so doing as part payment for its original outlay and current expenses.

This method of considering the subject was initiated fully a year and a half ago, and had been responded to with a promising spirit on the part of several of the governments addressed. Even the British government replied to Mr. Bayard's proposals on the subject by asking for further information as to the manner in which our government proposed to protect the seals. Instead of being ready with an answer to this question, which might have been foreseen, our state department delayed, in order, apparently, to discover what Great Britain might propose. In the meantime Canada got wind of what was going on and became alarmed, and no conclusion was reached.

Nevertheless, it may be found practicable for Mr. Blaine to pursue this very line of negotiations, only with more adroitness and vigor. The question of jurisdiction beyond the marine league is a dangerous, double-edged one, as he is well aware; but to secure practically all that we want by voluntary concession of other nations, based on the common commercial interests of mankind, would be quite different.

SMUGGLERS CAUGHT.

A Paris and New York Firm in a Bad Shape—Uncle Sam's Loss $250,000.

New York, April 6.—Allard & Sons, of Paris, and of No. 304 Fifth avenue, New York, are accused of smuggling operations on a tremendous scale, and a quantity of goods has been seized at their ware rooms by customs officers. Their method, it is charged, was to substitute rich silks and tapestries for the hair in stuffing the upholstered parts of antique furniture and so escape paying duty.

A portrait of one of the Vanderbilts was brought in back of an antique mirror, and a Rembrandt between the panels in a carved door. In each case the customers were charged for the duty which had not been paid.

The New York establishment of the firm is under the management of an agent named Paul Roulez, who has made a statement practically confessing to the irregularities practiced by the firm. The facts in the case were brought to the notice of the customs authorities by Blossier, former agent here. As far as is known the loss to the government amounts to about $50,000, and it is expected to foot up about $250,000.

POWDERLY'S IDEA

The Master Workman Expresses Some Interesting Views

IN REGARD TO THE BEST WAY TO REFORM CRIMINALS.

He Believes in Reforming Convicts by Providing Them With Work and Then Giving Them the Products of Their Labor—Such a Course Would be Advocated by the Knights of Labor.

SCRANTON, Pa., April 6.—General Master Workman Powderly has written a reply to the letter published by Henry Warner, of the Allegheny county work house, concerning a bill now pending before the Pennsylvania legislature. He says:

"I believe that an investigation will show that our prisons and penitentiaries contain as much talent as the house of representatives of the state, and, while it would not do to turn convicts into legislators, it would be eminently proper to drill and educate them that they would be more amenable to law and its influences when they leave the prisons. Mr. Warner argues that the work house is the only successful place to compete against the Standard Oil company, but does not state what influence the pernicious actions of the Standard Oil company had in filling the work houses and prisons.

"It was unfair competition on the part of the Standard Oil company and kindred concerns that drove other corporations with less capital out of business; then, unable to pay a fair rate of wages, they cut down the compensation of their workmen. Then followed suspensions from work on the part of workmen and bankruptcy on the part of the competitors; then followed crime and then prison and an introduction to Warner, whose intimacy with honest men is so limited that he knows nothing of their wants, feelings or aspirations.

"After that came the letting of the labor of convicts, not to the highest bidder, but to some favorite in the employ, possibly, of the Standard Oil company or some such agency. After that came the throwing of the products of the prisons upon the market at a very low figure, and then honest manufacturers were forced to cut wages, for, no matter though prison labor be only the drop in the bucket that many claim it to be, it must be remembered that it is the lowest rate of wages paid that regulates price, and not the highest.

"If all criminals were employed on state or National work, improving waste places, making habitable certain localities, reclaiming waste lands, etc., there would be plenty to do for all of our criminals, and if they were permitted to occupy the lands they reclaim they could lay claim to something they could sell their own after serving out their time.

"Here is the aim of the Knights of Labor regarding convicts: Do not keep convicts in idleness, but do not throw their labor on the market for a less price than that paid to honest labor; reform the imprisoned as well as punish them; give them something for their brains to do as well as their hands; teach them how to be Christians, while teaching them how to work; take what is given to the contractor of their earnings and give it to themselves when they leave prison, or allow their earnings to go to the support of their families, if they have any, instead of throwing those families on the charity of the town."

A New Historian.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Mr. Walter P. Phillips, the general manager of the United Press, while in the city this week disclosed a secret he has hitherto kept from his many friends here. It is that he is writing an elaborate historical work which is to be published early in the coming fall by a prominent New York house. The work is to be finally illustrated, and in every particular a beautiful specimen of typography.

Mr. Phillips has a great deal of literary talent as well as business ability, and there is no doubt he will produce a very interesting and attractive work, and one likely to be popular. In the field of fiction he has done considerable high class work, all of his stories showing remarkable skill, brilliancy, and originality, and as a historian it is likely he will be as successful.

How to Frustrate the Twine Trust.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 6.—State Senator Chapman is urging legislation looking to the manufacture of binding twine, suitable for farmers' use, by the prisoners in the state penitentiaries. His object is to frustrate the designs of the binding twine trust, and at the same time find employment for the prisoners. The senate Thursday adopted a resolution, introduced by Mr. Chapman, directing the commissioners to the penitentiaries to investigate the cost of the necessary plant and report at an early day.

Bound to Die.

LOGANSPORT, Ind., April 6.—Capt. R. K. Lord, of Lake Maxenkuckee, suicided Thursday. He was captain of several steamboats that plied the lake during the past three years. At noon he rowed out in the lake, anchored his boat, tied a piece of lead to his person, cut his throat with a razor, and jumped into the lake. His body was found near his boat, in eighty-five feet of water, a few hours after committing the rash act.

DAILY EVENING BULLETIN.

DAILY, EXCEPT SUNDAY.
ROSSER & MCCARTHY.
Proprietors.

SATURDAY EVE, APRIL 6, 1889.

LEGAL opinions come high, sometimes, but it seems the City Council has to have 'em.

It is intimated Andior Hewitt's friends will try to work the coming State convention for an endorsement of his official conduct. How would such action as that look, after he has sworn he was "inexcusably" negligent in discharging his duties?

The Chicago News indirectly charges that Frederick Dent Grant never did an honest day's work in all his life. True, he has been sent as Minister to the Austrian Court, but there's not much work connected with the office, and perhaps, he's too lazy to do this country any harm.

The Commercial Gazette compares the Democratic party to a veteran Russian soldier. When you have killed it, you have to go up and knock it on the head before you are assured it is dead. And the Commercial Gazette might truthfully have added that the corpse always comes up lively and smiling at the next election.

The twine trust has run the price of that article from 11 to 23 cents a pound, and the wheat growers of this country will have to fork over the exorbitant. Of course, protection protects, but it most always protects the trusts and other monopolies in their combinations to rob the people. The wheat growers who voted for a high tariff last fall will know more on the question when they pay twice as much for their twine this season as it cost last year.

Mr. L. W. GALBRAITH, the faithful County Superintendent of Public Schools, is a candidate for re-election. His announcement appears in this issue. Mr. Galbraith has had charge of the office for several years now, and it can be truthfully said that no Superintendent has done better and more successful work than he. He has succeeded in arousing a lively interest in the cause of education, and as a result there has been steady and very gratifying progress in the public schools of the county. One of the most commendable reforms he has been instrumental in bringing about is the monthly payment of the teachers. The office is in excellent hands. As a Democrat, Mr. Galbraith has proved one of the warmest and most enthusiastic supporters of the party's principles and nominees in the campaigns of late years.

The action of the Courier-Journal in using its influence for the confirmation of Murat Halstead as Minister to Berlin is an insult to every Democrat in Kentucky. Halstead is a bitter partisan, denouncing the South at every step, and was unfit to represent a Republic in any foreign mission.—Frankfort Argus.

The Courier-Journal was incited, no doubt, by a spirit of "journalistic courtesy." It evidently lost sight of the fact that it had got over on the Republican side of the fence and was mixing up in a family row in the enemy's camp. The Journal's readers here don't endorse its actions at all in this matter. However, a good many Democratic editors made fools of themselves in denouncing Halstead's rejection as an attempt on the part of the Republican Senate to "muzzle the press." They certainly lost sight of the fact that the Senate's action may result finally in turning that body over to the control of the Democrats. "Tall oaks from little acorns grow." This row in the Republican ranks is not settled yet.

Stock, Field and Farm

Davies County, this State, raised over 10,000,000 pounds of tobacco last year. Messrs. S. A. Piper and Joel Laytham, of Mayslick, bought of Berry & Murray of Henderson, Tenn., an imported Spanish jack Castillo, for big price. He was held at $1,500.

Our tobacco merchants are on the go. Already 200,000 pounds, or more have been purchased in this precinct, the prices paid ranging from six to eleven cents.—Bracken Chronicle.

The low price of cattle is very discouraging to Kentucky farmers who have fed a number through the winter. It looks like the cattle business in Kentucky has seen its best days. New areas in the West are constantly being thrown open for grazing, and transporting rates are so low to the East that Kentucky land at $50 and $100 can't compete in the market. Mules, sheep, hogs and horses are the stock profitable for Kentucky farmers to raise.—Harrodsburg Democrat.

Registered Pharmacists.

G. S. Judd and wife, to Lewellen Taylor, a lot on the Lexington pike, this city; consideration, $100.
Louisa Rankins, to Maysville and Mt. Sterling Turnpike Road Company, 8 acres of land near Maysville; consideration, $1,500, cash.

KENTUCKY'S WEALTH.

Assessed Value of Property in the State Amounts to Over Five Hundred Million Dollars.

The assessed value of property in Kentucky this year amounts to over $500,000,000, according to the report of the State Board of Equalization. This is an increase of about $9,000,000 over the equalized assessment in 1888.

Nicholas County's tax-book not having been returned by the County Clerk, the Board made the last year's assessment of the county the basis of calculation, and placed an increase of 23 per cent. upon the property in the county subject to equalization. This was the largest increase fixed by the Board, Bath and Harrison being next at 15 per cent., and Hopkins third at 10 per cent. Boyle County obtained the greatest reduction in 14 per cent., and Ballard and Menifee next in 8 per cent. Taking Nicholas County's last year's equalized assessment at $3,348,975, the total equalized assessment of the State will be $501,246,223.

As an indication of the points in the State where the most substantial changes of valuations were felt during the year, the following counties showed the greatest increase over the assessed valuation of 1888, viz: Kenton, $1,397,264; Fayette, $650,383; Harlan, $623,380; McCracken, $519,296; Jefferson, $493,524; Bell, $447,338; Bourbon, $447,320; Owen, $318,983; Pike, $316,026.

The following showed the greatest decrease, viz: Perry, $513,111; Jessamine, $108,747; Boone, $283,094; Campbell, $250,833; Hopkins, $213,153.

In a list of what are commonly considered the mountain counties, twenty eight in all, embracing Bell, Breathitt, Carter, Clay, Elliott, Floyd, Harlan, Jackson, Johnson, Knott, Knox, Laurel, Lawrence, Lee, Leslie, Letcher, Magoffin, Martin, Owsly, Perry, Pike, Powell, Pulaski, Rockcastle, Rowan, Wayne, Whitley and Wolfe, it was found that the aggregated equalized valuation of 1888 was $30,901,275, and that of 1889, $34,456,363, or an increase over 1888 of $3,555,088. Every county in the list increased in valuation excepting Martin, Perry and Pulaski.

The act creating the new Board has operated quite successfully. It has cost but $1,000 in contrast to the old Boards which cost on an average of $5,000 and upwards, and enables the Auditor to order the collection of the revenue almost a month and a half earlier than under the old law.

Childs looked over the route and made an estimate of the cost for the Atlantic and Ohio Railway Company. The contemplated route from here was down the river to Lawrence Creek, then up that creek and its west fork by way of Slack, Fern Leaf, Germantown, Brooksville, &c.

BOULANGER.

The General Looks Like a Man Who Had Made a Mistake.

HE SAYS HE ACTED UNDER THE ADVICE OF HIS SUPPORTERS.

He Says He Will Remain in Brussels Until After the October Elections—Six of His Co-Conspirators Join Him and They Confer—Trouble Again Brewing in the Balkan States—Foreign.

BRUSSELS, April 6.—Gen. Boulanger looks very much like a man who had made a great mistake. All his spruceness and nattiness of carriage and address have disappeared. His face is colorless and his eyes are encircled by heavy lines.

Some forty odd people were waiting to see him when he called at the Hotel Mergelles, and guards were patrolling the streets dispersing the crowd. Henri Rochefort's tall figure blocked the doorway for a moment, as he left Boulanger's room and hurried back to his hotel. The general was pacing the floor impatiently, with his hands clasped tightly behind his back. He wore a short, white fatigue jacket, military trousers, and pulled his mustache as he talked.

"I came here," said Gen. Boulanger, "because in Belgium I can be free and direct the movements of the National party just as well as in Paris. I act under the urgent advice of my supporters, Laguerre, Naquet, Turquet and Laisant. These gentlemen sent me a letter. Here is the original. This letter is dated March 14. I refused to go."

"Then I received a personal note from Laguerre urging me to leave Paris, and every effort was made to get me to consent to it. As I watched the course of events I saw by the light of inside information, which continually reached me, that my life was to be forfeited."

"At 5 o'clock on Monday evening I received positive information that I was to be arrested on Tuesday, with all that such an arrest implied. The mad fools of parliamentarians would have begun by placing me in strict confinement while awaiting the result. This would have prevented my efforts to complete the grand work of National emancipation."

"What are your plans, general?" "I must await the turn in events. I shall remain here until after the election next October. I have no longer the reserve strength I once had, and a long term of imprisonment was full of menace. This is my retreat now, but it will be the asylum of my persecutors after the October election. I have been fairly inundated by telegrams from my supporters everywhere in the French provinces commending my action, and so hearty have been these imitations that they have taken out the sting of a few hasty revolts in Paris."

Gen. Boulanger's day has been busy. The beautiful woman who ran away with him brushed against me at the railroad station to-day. She had been to Mons, presumably for Boulanger. In appearance she is distinguished, young and handsome, with well-rounded figure, regular features and hazel eyes.

When the Paris train passengers alighted Laisant, Naquet and Millevoe, as well as Lauer, Dorquie and Laguerre, were recognized. The new comers were hurried off to the hotel, where Gen. Boulanger met them. The news of the coming of the conspirators, as they were called, spread through Brussels like wildfire, and a great crowd of anti-Boulangists assembled and made a great uproar.

Amid all the clamor Boulanger and his friends walked into supper and the doors were closed. The conference began with detectives prying about.

Discord in the Balkan States.

LONDON, April 6.—A discordant note has been sounded from one of the Balkan states and careful students of European politics profess to see in it possibilities of a European war that would bring Russia and the triple alliance into the field against each other and involve one or more of the smaller powers. The resignation of the Roumanian ministry has a significance that is of great importance in regard to this possible war.

The reason of their resignation is that they do not approve the act of King Charles in proclaiming his nephew, Prince Ferdinand, his heir. Russia spoke some days ago and condemned the king's action, and as the Roumanian ministry are Russophiles to a man, they have been obediently followed, their Russian masters lead and command, after a proper time has been given for the rescinding of the obnoxious proclamation.

The threat that Russia uttered after Milan's abdication from Serbia, politicians believe to be no idle one, and many think that the Northern Bear is now making ready to put into effect the words: "Alexander, of Bulgaria, was the first to go; Milan, of Serbia, was second and Charles, of Roumania, will come next."

King Charles is a Hohenzollern and has no love for Russia. His choice of his nephew Ferdinand for his successor is especially offensive to Russia, as Ferdinand is also a Russophile and an officer in the Austrian army. The tendencies both of Charles and his crown prince are toward Austria, and the latter country would feel it necessary to assist Roumania in a struggle against Russia, and its action would engage the other members of the triple alliance.

The resigning of his ministry is a warning to King Charles, which, if he does not heed, will be but the precursor of a more definite notice from Russia.

Stanley Heard of as Late as December 12. COLUMBUS, O., April 6.—A resident of this city has received a letter dated Feb. 14 from W. H. Sanders, a missionary at Benguela, on the west coast of Africa. The writer refers to Stanley, and says: "I have been surprised to see that the December papers mention the possibility that Stanley has been captured. The chief agent of the Dutch house at Banana was here last month, and he said that news of Stanley had been received there Dec. 12, and that he had reached Emin Bey and come back to Aruwhimi Falls to get the remaining loads. If it proves true that he was captured, the inference will be that the Dutch agent fled or was himself hoaxed."

Idaho Rejoices. SHOSHONE, Idaho, April 6.—Governor Stevenson's call for a constitutional convention at Boise City, July 4, on the assurance from Delegate Dubois, in Washington, that Idaho will be made a state next winter, causes much rejoicing.
